

Abstract of the Disclosure

A network receiver is configured for receiving a modulated carrier signal from another network transceiver via a network medium, the modulated carrier signal may be either a pulse position modulated (PPM) carrier or a quadrature amplitude modulated (QAM) carrier. The network receiver is configured to select an optimal gain setting for the input amplifier corresponding to whether the modulated carrier is PPM or QAM.

5